

Online Educational Health Consultation.

Your Education Appointment

Unlike with a live clinical visit, your participation in an online telemedicine or telephone educational health consultation will not result in either (i) the formation of a NP-patient relationship between you and Cindy Wechsler, APRN or (ii) a diagnosis or the creation of a treatment plan. I can provide you with a host of educational information and expertise that you can share with your own provider back home.

You will receive a personalized Health Education Report which will teach you:

- First, the understanding of the root cause(s) of your health condition. For example, if you have an allergies, constipation, chronic infections, skin rashes or really any illness or symptom, Cindy Wechsler, APRN will share with you a clear check list of the evidence-based root causes of these conditions from an Integrative medicine perspective.
- Next, you will learn about how to treat each of these root causes. For example, if one of the root causes is an imbalance in your gut microbiome, in your Health Education Report, Cindy Wechsler, APRN will share information with you about a detailed program for healing the gut, including food plans, resources and websites for you to find and purchase the supplements you need, all great information for you to share with your medical team back home, to integrate into your treatment program.

I have read and agree to the above information.
